

Amelia Academy Welcome Back!

It is with great excitement and anticipation that we welcome the community back for a new year of academic excellence at Amelia Academy, the school's Fifty-Sixth Opening Day. While some of the names and faces have changed, the goal has not. We will continue to provide a college-preparatory education to the region that fosters a life-long desire to learn. This year we welcome several new teachers to the fold while a few instructors have new duties. Members of the staff and administration have been on campus throughout the summer in preparation for the upcoming year, and our patrons and students will notice a difference.

Our Annual Book Day is Friday, August 9 from 9-12, and the first day of school is Monday August 12. That day will be a full-day. Students are expected to adhere to the dress code from Day One, and parents should note that students not following our code will not be allowed to attend classes.

We will begin this school year still mourning the loss of Ms. Eva Scott and Mr. Walter Duncan. While they may be gone, their impact on our school and culture continues on, now and forever. We dedicate ourselves to continuing the legacy of education they began so many years ago. May their spirit and memory be forever remembered by our community.

For residents of the region who have not been to our school in a while, or wish to inquire more about what we are all about, we invite you to visit our campus. For those of you who are looking for a new educational experience, we invite you to investigate and study what we have to offer to your student, and how we can make a difference for your family.
